BOARD OF FINANCE

$5,000 Asked For Supplying Library Books to Schools.

The board of finance met yesterday afternoon and received the grand list from the assessors, showing an increase of $2,700,000 over that of last year. The present figures are as follows: First taxation district, $55,750,000; second taxation district, inside, $46,950,000; second taxation district, outside, $3,450,000.

John O'Neill, president of the Board of Finance, Miss Sperry, the librarian, Superintendent Tinker of the public schools, Miss Ella Bosley and B. H. Fitzpatrick appeared in favor of an appropriation to enable the library to keep up the work of supplying books to the schools for the accommodation of the children. They asked $5,000. Senator Phelan explained the need of a few transfers in the school department. They were favorably reported to the aldermen. On recommendation of the board of education the salary of James Hayden janitor of the Welton street school, was granted an increase of $5 a month. A communication from Town Clerk Brett asking that an appropriation of $1,000 be made for indexing town records. It will be considered later. Dr. J. D. Freney, chairman of the board of health, and Commissioner D. P. Noonan spoke in favor of making provision to take proper care of the city's garbage.

The half monthly bills were read and approved.

BROOKLYN BRIEFS.

—"Chick" Leahy has been heard from. Who's next?

—There is not much change in the condition of Patrolman John Dunphy.

—Meeting of the Brooklyn and Town Plot Improvement committee this evening.

—St Joseph's fair, which is being held in the new Lithuanian hall on Green street, will be brought to a close this evening.

—The members of the Spaulding Athletic club have placed curtains on the windows at their rooms. The curtains are suitably inscribed with the letters "S. P. A." A meeting will be held this evening to decide whether the club shall purchase coal for the winter.

—Joseph Riley, clerk in Smith's drug store, while washing one of the large front windows this morning, lost his balance and crashed against the pane. Of course there was a scattering of glass in all directions. Riley's feet were on the outside of the window while the rest of his body was on the inside. He was not hurt by the glass. Riley says he is up against it of late as it is only a few days ago that he lost a valuable diamond out of a ring.

—The Brooklyn polo team was in the game every minute with the Hamilton Parks last evening and although not landing a victory, succeeded in making the game a tie. There was plenty of rough work, but each side was equally to blame, and there should be no reason why any attack should be made on any one player. If these amateur games continue to be as lively as the one last evening there'll be as many people on hand to see them as the big contests. Last night the amateurs aroused as much enthusiasm as the professionals.

FIRST CHURCH CONCERT.

Greatly Enjoyed By Those Who Attended Last Night.

Concerts of a high class nature are always enjoyable but the more so when rendered by home talent, consequently it is not strange that the excellent concert at the First Congregational church last evening was a treat to those present as it was a success in every way.

The concerted numbers, Goring Thomas' choral ode "The Sun Worshippers" and the sextet from "Lucia" were well given. The work of the soloists, Prof. John L. Bonn, pianist; George I. Tompkins, violinist; Mrs. Claude Macdonald Calvert, soprano; Mrs. Robert S. May, contralto; Mortimer Howard, tenor; and Herbert S. Bullard, bass, was all that could be desired. The accompanists were Theodore Barnes and Arthur L. Towne. It was perhaps Mr. Howard who was the biggest surprise of the night. Although his fine tenor voice has been heard to advantage before by many of those present few realized until last evening what a really great voice he has. His clear, rich tones and the smoothness with which he sang, impressed the audience from the start. His range of voice was all that could be expected and he rendered his passages in almost every instance with just the proper expression. But Mr. Howard was not the only vocalist that scored heavily during the evening. Mrs. Robert S. May in her rendition of Beach's "Scottish Cradle Song," Grieg's "Morning Dew," and Lalo's "The Bondmaid," had ample opportunity to display her admirable voice which is always a pleasure to hear. Sergeant's "Blow, Blow, Blow" and Schumann's "Ich Criele Nicht" were well rendered by Mr. Bullard in his powerful bass voice. Professor John L. Bonn whose work at the recital in the Buckingham last March called for much praise was again heard and much appreciated last evening. The only regret is that he does not appear before the public more often. He played the Chopin B flat minor scherzo in a delightful manner, while his encore number, the Schumann "Nachts-tücke" was as well done. George I. Tompkins continues to grow more proficient in the art of playing the violin and his ability is showing itself more in every appearance. Walter's "Preislied" was a difficult selection but it seemed anything but hard to the young artist, who is fast winning laurels in the musical world. The concert in every way was a triumph and it is to be hoped another will be given in the near future.

Hampden-Sellow has the family that you will want in your room Thanksgiving.
